UNIMED WEEK IN BRUSSELS

19-21 MARCH 2019

PROGRAMME

UNIMED is a network of universities and research centres active in promoting Euro-Mediterranean academic cooperation. Our mission is to facilitate the Euro-Mediterranean dimension of university collaborations in order to enhance the scientific, cultural, social, and economic development of the region.

UNIMED WEEK IN BRUSSELS

Education, research and innovation have an enormous transformational potential in our societies. Education and innovation systems, as the essential pillars for sustainable, inclusive and equitable societies, have a crucial role in promoting equal opportunities, equal access and build employability.

Since the Barcelona Euro-Mediterranean Conference in 1995, the EU has stepped up its efforts to achieve our shared objectives of a common area of peace and stability, shared prosperity and social, cultural and human partnership.

The international cooperation instruments made available by the EU have largely contributed to creating bridges among peoples and societies, reinforcing scientific dialogue, cultural cooperation, trust, and mutual understanding. EU instruments play a crucial role in building stable and effective relations among European and Southern Mediterranean countries, and education is central to the efforts of the European Union. Academic communities, students, faculty members, administrators, have benefited from a wide range of programmes promoting cooperation, mobility, research, capacity building.

The activities undertaken by the Euro-Mediterranean academic community show the value of encouraging and supporting this work, while also seeking more synergies in the light of the current multifaceted dynamics and challenges.

UNIMED is strongly committed to playing a major role in the region, integrating and synergising key initiatives in research, education, and innovation, as well as in supporting the political dialogue. Over the past 28 years, UNIMED has been engaged in small and large-scale initiatives to promote Euro-Mediterranean academic cooperation, contributing to scientific, cultural, social and economic collaboration.

The fourth edition of the UNIMED WEEK IN BRUSSELS seeks to propose a political reflection by the Euro-Mediterranean academic community on the relationships between European Institutions and the Mediterranean region, offering an opportunity for evaluation and revaluation of regional policies.

Concurrently, this event allows to improve the knowledge and use of EU-supported programmes in this field, facilitating the identification of further support needs.

The fourth edition of the UNIMED WEEK IN BRUSSELS is an opportunity to reinforce our common platform for dialogue, raise questions, develop our skills and ability to deal with issues of common concern, and identify steps for future cooperation in a constructive and positive atmosphere.

The changing nature of crisis in the MENA region: The university perspective

International, regional and local crisis are highly affecting the MENA region by putting pressure on local societies and highlighting tensions. The Syrian crisis is only the last humanitarian, political and war crisis that is changing region equilibrium and aspect. Additionally, it should be underlined how these crises are constantly changing: sometimes evolving, sometimes regressing. In both cases the crisis we were facing 7 or 4 or even 2 years ago it is not the same type of crisis we have to face, as Higher Education System practitioners and representatives, nowadays.

It is necessary to observe and analyze the changing nature of these crisis (the Syrian war, the Yemeni scenario, Iraq instability, Libya post-war transition, only to mention few of them) in order to design fluid actions able to adapt to constantly and rapidly changing scenarios. Just to make one example: from the last year the Syrian refugees crisis is no longer considered and perceived only as humanitarian crisis but the focus it is now on education and employability. As UNHCR constantly repeated, the presence of Syrian refugees in Jordan, Lebanon, Turkey and Iraq will last for the next 15 years.

In North Africa Libya is experiencing a difficult transition from a condition of war to a post-war transition phase with all the related difficulties, ambiguities and problems. Yemen is almost forgotten and isolated from the rest of the Middle East with few reliable data and statistics available. Iraq seems to be more stable than in the past with huge needs in terms of Higher Education System reforms and capacity building. Lebanon, Jordan and Turkey are still under a huge societal pressure with all the related consequences for the local communities.

For all these reasons there is always the need to know more on these HE realities and hear voices directly from the MENA region in order to put, around the same table, people with different perspectives that are, together, able to deeply understand the changing nature of this crisis situation and act accordingly. Universities, in this sense, play a crucial role by acting as social, political and institutional actor for the benefit of the whole society. How to upscale already ongoing initiatives? How to adapt EU funded project activities (such as RESCUE) to these changing realities? What mid and long term scenarios do we have in front of us and we have to face together?

Time to invest in an “Erasmus Mediterranean Generation”

In partnership with the Anna Lindh Foundation, and in the framework of the UNIMED Week Brussels, this event will explore youth-centered analysis of challenges and opportunities concerning future programming for Euro-Mediterranean cultural cooperation.

The European Commission is currently in the process of preparing the future multi-annual funding framework, with the European Parliament Culture Committee having adopted on 20 February 2019 its report on 2021-27 and calling for an Erasmus+ “truly open to everyone”. In this context, new social research and pilot programming carried out in recent months across Europe, the Middle East and North Africa points to the potential of youth-led cultural exchange as a powerful catalyst for international cooperation and for the creation of a “Mediterranean Generation” as an essential partner for dialogue and peace-building.

Key questions on how to therefore invest in an Erasmus Mediterranean Generation include: How to widen access to youth communities not traditionally engaged in Erasmus+ and the role of virtual exchange? Are there emerging alternative ways of meaningful dialogue across cultures? What are the areas of converging interests among a millennial generation to the south and north of the Mediterranean? What are the political barriers and challenges to expanding at scale cultural mobility?

Venue: Town Hall Europe, 5-6 Square des Meeus

09:00-09:30 Welcome and registration

09:30-10:30 Millennials, intercultural trends & the EU neighbourhood south

In recent years multilateral actors and member states have increasingly recognised the central role of young women and men as central partners for renewed regional and international cooperation in the face of shared challenges. At EU level this is reflected in a series of policy initiatives launched during this phase of the Commission, from the first Global Strategy to the new European Neighbourhood Policy. This session will analyse new research on socio-cultural trends related to civil society participation and youth-led dialogue in the Euro-Mediterranean region carried out by the Anna Lindh Foundation with Ipsos-MORI, as the basis for transforming youth policy from debate into action. It will also look at how investment in Mediterranean youth could be central to shaping alternative narratives of exchange and cooperation in the face of extremist discourses and growing polarisation among societies of the region.

Contributors include representatives from the European External Action Service and DG Neighbourhood along with: Elisabeth Guigou, President of the Anna Lindh Mediterranean Foundation for Dialogue, former Minister and Chair of the French National Assembly Foreign Affairs Committee (France); Professor Hmaid Ben Aziza, Secretary-General of UNIMED (Tunisia); Esmat Elsayed, Young Mediterranean Voices (YMV) and delegate to the Africa-EU Summit (Egypt); Paul Gillespie, Journalist, academic and member of the intercultural research scientific committee; Leonidas Tezapsidis, Senior Adviser to the Managing Director Middle East & North Africa (MENA), European External Action Services, European Commission.

10:30-11:00 Break

11:00-12:00 Virtual exchange & widening access to young mediterranean voices

Virtual exchange is a rapidly growing practice and field through which meaningful encounters take place between individuals or groups who are geographically or culturally separated with the support of educators and/or facilitators. During 2018/19, the first "Erasmus+ Virtual Exchange has been piloted at the Euro-Mediterranean level, with initial impact data providing a basis for rethinking how future programming can widen access of cultural mobility opportunities and intercultural dialogue to hard-to-reach groups who do not traditionally benefit. This session will provide insights to the methodologies of Virtual Exchange based on the experience of the individuals and organisations on the frontline of this pioneering field. It will also explore how digitally-enabled intercultural exchange can support advocacy for enhanced investment in diverse cultural mobility schemes, and the types of intercultural debates that already taking place through virtual platforms.

Contributors include representatives from the consortium for the European Commission Erasmus+ Virtual Exchange along with: Aissam Benaissa, Erasmus+ Virtual Exchange Online Debate Community Manager (Algeria); Sandra Melone, Senior Advisor to the President of Search for Common Ground; Sophie Schriever, Journalist at German TV chain ARD and contributor to the MENA Committee of European Youth Press (Germany).
